

Women's Studies: Summer Institute and Joint Major Component

Sir George Williams University
Montreal, Quebec

Summer Institute in Women's Studies July 2 - August 9, 1974

Scope

The summer institute will introduce our new program in Women's Studies. This program is based on the recognition that the systematic study of women has been neglected by all academic disciplines. Courses will deal with women's history as well as recent research which has been stimulated in the social sciences and other areas.

Structurally, courses will be offered within particular disciplines as well as in the new Center for Interdisciplinary Studies. The summer institute complements the regular program in Women's Studies* in that it exposes students to well known personalities, writers, and academics who are not presently part of Sir George Williams University staff.

Courses

CISWS N-211

Political Economy of Women's Work

A course designed to explore the correlations between sex role definitions, labour, work and the family from a Marxist perspective. Specific reference will be made to women's rights struggles in Canada, critiques of women's liberation ideologies, and strategies for women's movements. (full course: 6 credits)

Taught by: Margaret Benston (Ph.D.) Simon Fraser University. Ms. Benston is the author of The Political Economy of Women's Liberation and is presently completing a book on women and their work. She has been teaching interdisciplinary courses since 1968, the most recent of which have focused on women.

* Subject to final approval by University Senate

 There are no prerequisites for these courses. Any half-course may be taken by itself.

 Center for Interdisciplinary Studies (Women's Studies)

Religion N-493

Images of Women in Antiquity and the Jewish and Christian Traditions

This course will survey the social and symbolic roots of sexism in the rise of civilization; the development of patriarchy and the role of male/female polarity in religious symbol systems in Biblical thought, Talmudic Judaism and classical Christianity. (half course: 3 credits)

Religion N-494

The Changing Image of Women in Modern Ideologies

This course will survey the emergence of women's liberation as a part of the breakdown of patriarchal society, and the reshaping of sexual symbolism in religion and culture in such movements as liberalism, romanticism, fascism and social Darwinism, Marxism and Psychoanalysis. (half course: 3 credits)

Both of these half courses will be taught by:

Rosemary Ruether (Ph.D.) Harvard Divinity School and Howard University. Ms. Ruether is the author of numerous articles and books. To list a few: The Church Against Itself, Communion is Life Together, The Radical Kingdom, and Liberation Theology. Her latest work The Second Sex and the Single God: The image of Women in the Judeo-Christian Tradition is soon to be released.

Psychology N-404

Women and Psychology

A critical analysis of psychiatric and other forms of counselling for women from a feminist perspective. (half course: 3 credits)

Psychology N-405

Mental Health - Mental Illness

A course designed to investigate the politics of mental illness from a feminist perspective. This will include a critique of personality development in men and women. (half course: 3 credits)

Both of these half courses will be taught by:
Phyllis Chesler (Ph.D.) Richmond College, City of New York. Ms. Chesler is the author of Women and Madness and has published several articles in journals such as The Radical Therapist, Psychology Today, and Science. She is presently completing a book with R.D. Laing, tentatively entitled Conversations.
